

Daniel Cattran

Short Bio Mar 2019

Dr. Cattran is currently a Professor of Medicine at the University of Toronto and a Senior Scientist at the Toronto General Research Institute. His administrative roles have included Chairman of the Royal College of Canada specialty program in nephrology, and director of the transplant program and PGE program in nephrology at the University of Toronto.

Dr. Cattran's major research work has been in field of glomerulonephritis. He was the principle organizer and remains the Chair of the Toronto Glomerulonephritis Registry, which currently includes over 12,000 cases of biopsy proven GN. He has authored over 230 peer-reviewed papers and more than 35 book chapters related in large part to glomerulonephritis.

He is currently the co chair of the "song-GD "initiative developing standardization tools for outcomes in GN .He was cochairman of the KDIGO working group that developed the first published guideline for glomerulonephritis management.

He remains actively involved in clinical research both nationally and internationally.

Amongst his awards, the Kidney Foundation of Canada Medal for Research Excellence and the Distinguish International Scientist award from the US National Kidney Foundation in recognition of his contributions to global nephrology. Most recently he was awarded Researcher of the Year from the University of Toronto in recognition of sustained excellence as a scientist and role model over several years.